Synthetic datasets take the same range of shapes as real EC3 categories, at every size blue: the exact parent density each synthetic dataset was drawn from; orange: a kernel estimate of a real category, the only density available for real data; ticks: the values

